With over 9,000 acres of pristine beachfront property along the Caribbean coast, you have the potential to create a truly spectacular residential resort destination. The 12 miles of unspoiled sandy beaches and turquoise waters offer a picturesque backdrop for luxury living. Given the property's history as a salt production facility in the 1960s, there's also the potential for restoring that operation or exploring other possibilities like fish farming, leveraging the coastal location. The presence of an old private airport adds even more appeal, making access easier for potential residents and guests. Creating a world-class residential resort destination on such a scale offers endless possibilities for development. From beachfront homes to private yacht docks, you can cater to high-end clientele...read more on our website.
